Prince George, who stands a fair show of being the next King of England-if that country ever has another monarch at his home here. -was married with great ceremony last week to Princess May of Teck. The event make an extended visit. was celebrated with all the pomp and splendor that royalty could devise. But scarcely had the wedding chimes ceased, when it is announced that this heir to the English throne was several years ago secretly married to a daughter of a British naval officer, and that he is the father of two children. George being royal, the former marriage did not count. His escapade was known by his family and the woman he married, but royalty can do no harm, and it was overlooked. An ordinary subject of England with two wives would be a bigamist, and dealt with accordingly, but a prince is a gentleman even though his private character is as black as the devil's.

A bitter struggle over the silver question seems the more probable as the time for the meeting of Congress approaches. It is apparent that the free coinage men will make the struggle of their lives, and in the past they have proven themselves no mean fighters. If by no other means, they can talk a measure to death .-Cleveland may use his patronage check, but that will avail little if a constituency says to a Congressman, "we cumb to Cleveland without a struggle. These two propositions are self-evident.

The silver law is not to blame for the nonetary stringency. What is the matter with the country is fear of legislation. The proper way to restore confidence, to clean out the channels of commerce, and to start the country again on the high road of prosperity, is to assure in marriage and performing the last sad rites over and unnatural condition dates back only school-house on Wednesday night, this week. to the coming into power of the Democracy. Let President Cleveland recall his proclamation of a Congress on August 7th, and say that he will stand between the country and tariff meddling, and the prosperity of Republican control will at once reappear.

By a decision of the Supreme Court the new liquor law of South Carolina is held to be unconstitutional on the ground that by taking entire control of the busi ness the State engages in a monopoly. The law was a radical departure from es tablished methods of dealing with the liquor question, and attracted attention from that fact. The State has on hand $300,000 worth of liquors, of which it may have some trouble to dispose, unless the Governor of North Carolina is invited to come down.

The action of the French Catholics of Montreal in attempting to stir up a riot at the Christian Endeavor convention is an argument against the annexation of Canada that should not be overlooked. These narrow-minded fanatics would have to undergo a complete change be fore they would become good American citizens, and as they are in a majority in Canada, it is not likely they will change. The United States will save trouble by simply repelling all offers of annexation.

There may be just enough fun over the election of a Speaker of the House when Congress meets to make it interesting. The silver Democrats and Populists have intimated that they would prefer to vote for a Republican for Speaker rather than for Crisp, and in case they should decide to take such an action, the row would not be of small proportions.
